

Lucid

The red orange rush cozy in my mind
Tasting my open heart alight Beating how ever
---bogged down by blue heaviness, the sick death---
Of not drinking water for days
Hurt thick like a sore throat, struggle to swallow I'm !Purple!
my heart hiccups through seasons, I'm winding up again

Taste the sour
Yogurt the intermediate messenger, the forgotten
;Climbing my neck, a careful spider;
Down down, like the strings on my piano
Dead words, too thick charcoal
Reaching no (no) one;,
Out on the green plains
