

Waves of Gray

Waves of gray come rushing in
Unto the speckled shore,
The chill sinks into my skin
But I am still left wanting more.

Unto the speckled shore,
Darkness crawls through rock and sand.
But I am still left wanting more,
The beach falls under its command.

Darkness crawls through rock and sand,
Whisked upward by the breeze.
The beach falls under its command
Soon it will take the seas.

Whisked upward by the breeze,
Like some winter-tainted dream.
Soon it will take the seas,
Under the moonlight's faithful gleam.

Like some winter-tainted dream,
Night has left me cold and bare.
Under the moonlight's faithful gleam,
I couldn't bring myself to care.

Night has left me cold and bare
And waves of gray came rushing by.
I couldn't bring myself to care
And now I'll never wonder why.