

Stuck in a Loophole -Written as a song
By Anika Goyal

Always trying to be on the right side
Yet I maintained my pride
But before that I need to hide
While I learn more bout this universe

Each second passes me by
Like sand slipping between my fingertips
Feel like you were magic Kinda like Doctor Strange
I guess you've changed
Instead of me and myself

But, I feel stuck in a loophole
Feel like I'm not in control
Somebody in the driver seat
What if we crash and I get a treat
Things aren't going the way I wanted it to
Maybe it's for the best
I turned left
You turned right

Let me ride the waves
Guess the fakes
Dodge the breaks
Figure out what's best for us
Just don't have the guts
To do or try anything

Guess things are complicated that way
Why can't this be picture-perfect
Like a fairy tale
Minus the villain and heartbreak
Almost like a happily ever after
Is that too much to ask for
Never asked for anything else

But, I feel stuck in a loophole
Feel like I'm not in control
Somebody else is in the driver seat
What if we crash and I get a treat
Things aren't going the way I wanted it to
Maybe it's for the best
And I turned left
You turned right

I could have gone away
But I stayed
Wanted to keep an eye on you
Not ending up like Frankenstein
Creepy and horrifying
With no one to talk to

But you pushed me away
Turned into Frankie anyway
God, answer my prayers
Why's this happening?
Used to be best friends
Now we don't even talk
Come on do something
Are you listening?
Please answer me
I need your help
To get back on my toes without her

But I feel stuck in a loophole
Nowhere to go anymore
Alone in the end
Like Jack without Jill
Marlin without Dory
And Beauty without her humble beast
So just solve my doubts